President's Message - Tim Rossow

There aren't enough words in the world about art so here's our contribution from AAOS, a monthly president's report. Why can't Ocean Shores be a more vibrant art village? I intend to do my part to make that happen.

I am very honored to serve not only as the new president of AAOS but to also direct the 2023 Arts and Crafts Festival. AAOS has been hosting the festival for 53 years. There aren't too many other groups in our village that have been going longer than that.

We have a great arts community but we have lots of room to grow if we want to be mentioned alongside places like Cannon Beach, Bend, OR, and Edmonds, WA. I hope my term as president of AAOS gets us closer.

In this past month we have had a great start to the Arts and Crafts Festival planning thanks to a bunch of great artists and leaders who I asked to be Team Leaders. This is a great and talented bunch: Tom and Kathy Baker, Jade Black, Moda Mark, Sharon Goechel, Lesli Zielke (the gallery manager at Tim Rossow Watercolors & Associates), and Karen Fox.

We already have nearly 40 paid registrations for the festival which is way ahead of last year. We have over 20 registered artists who were not in the show last year. That is a very positive sign.

We have added a Team to focus just on music to bring more energy and life to the festival and we have added a much more expanded children and youth program.

It's not just the art community that is getting involved. The City Council has been very diligent in trying to open up an avenue that we might be able to use to help us fund part of the festival.

Is Ocean Shores becoming a better arts community? It sure is. More to come...

Featured Artist of the Month Kelly Stacey

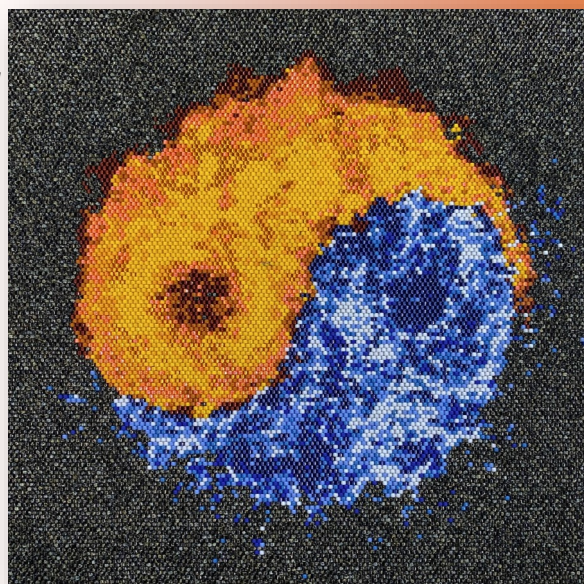

This month's featured artist is Kelly Stacey, who specializes in bead weaving. She enjoys making an assortment of jewelry pieces, including bracelets, pendants and earrings, and also creates various items she calls "whimsies." These include tapestries and other wall hangings, decorative boxes, and a variety of holiday pieces.

For many years, Kelly, who serves as AAOS treasurer, has practiced a variety of art forms that she considers more craft-oriented, embroidery being a favorite example. She explained that, "after a major depressive disorder episode," she started beading as a form of therapy.

Today, after 14 years, her single needle bead weaving art spans many motifs. Her work ranges from beautifully complex and meticulously assembled jewelry, including some mixed media pieces, all the way to pop culture images such as yin-yang and dancing bear tapestries. Of course, as an Ocean Shores resident, she occasionally finds inspiration in beach themes, and enjoys beach-combing for shells, agates and rocks that may become parts of some future projects.

Last year marked her first foray into swelling her artwork. She tried the new Market By the Sea that ran during the summer outdoors at the Lions Club on Ocean Shores Blvd., as well as the AAOS Arts & Crafts Festival Labor Day weekend and the Thanksgiving weekend Winter FantaSea event, both at the Ocean Shores Convention Center. She plans to return this year to Market By the Sea and the AAOS Festival.

Kelly, her husband, Wes, and a rescued terrier/ chihuahua mix she said is appropriately named "Stinky," moved here two years ago from Portland, OR, where she was born and raised. She enjoyed the fortunate timing of retiring from a public health job with the State of Oregon just before the pandemic began. After finding Oregon Coast property too pricey, they began looking up this way and quickly fell in love with a home on the Grand Canal.

"I love living in Ocean Shores," she enthused. "This is the best move I ever made!" While the change from big city to small town has occasionally involved a bit of culture shock, she's found it easy to make new friends and get involved in new groups, such as Associated Arts of Ocean Shores.

Kelly can be reached through her Facebook page, and at her email address, kellystacey1961@gmail.com
