President's Message

"Associated Arts" Means All the Arts

When we think of AAOS we usually think of the visual arts and crafts but our 2023 Arts and Crafts Festival is truly an associating of all art forms including music and the forensic arts.

Moda Mark is the team leader for our Festival Music Team and he has put together a wide variety of musical styles for our outdoor main stage. We will also have a smaller indoor stage in the big room in the convention center that will also feature music but also forensic arts.

The outdoor stage has three headliner bands and other great musicians throughout the day. The headliners on Friday and Saturday will take the stage once the arts/crafts halls close at 5 pm so the artists can grab a beer or glass of wine and enjoy the music. Friday night's headliner is Nashville recording artists Luke and Kaylee. Luke is from the area and is known for being one half of the Olson Brothers. His new act is with his wife Kaylee. They feature country-pop music. The Saturday night headliner is Randy Lindner's Creedence Clearwater Revival tribute band, a classic rock band. Sunday's headliner is local singer, songwriter Erika Coban. She plays country/pop music. Other bands include Johnny Gargano's local 60's band, a country/blues trio, Ms. Maki and the Boys and more.

The indoor stage will also have local music groups, including a violinist. In addition the indoor stage will host a silent auction throughout the weekend and we will be auctioning off Jade Black's original piece that served as our poster art this year. The forensic arts will be represented by local actors doing soliloquies and some poets reading their poems.

Our 2023 Arts and Crafts Festival is putting the "Associated" in AAOS. It's going to be a wonderful and comprehensive arts festival. See you at the Convention Center September 1-3 later this summer.

Featured Artist of the Month Karen Nichols

The AAOS Artist of the Month for June 2023 is Karen Nichols, a prolific artist and writer who celebrates coastal life and the natural world in her work, but also like to occasionally engage in a bit of fun and fantasy. She works in various media including mosaics (her favorite), mixed media, photography, monoprints, watercolor, and acrylic. She also produces animated videos, and stop-motion animation shorts.

A recent transplant from the San Francisco Bay area to Ocean Shores, Karen earned a B.A. in English and Art History (double major) from Santa Clara University, and an MFA in Creative Writing from Stanford. She has exhibited in galleries from New York City to San Diego, and her work has been featured in magazines internationally. One piece is part of the permanent collection at the Federal Building in San Francisco. Awards have included the Karen Kuykendall medal from the National Cat Writers Association for outstanding achievement in visual art.

Karen has always felt a strong connection to the sea, and after her husband passed away, she began looking at relocating to Washington state. She considered Sequim, but lots of internet searches finally yielded a place in Ocean Shores. "I'd never even visited Ocean Shores before," she explains on her website, oceanshoresart.com. "But with Mr. Google's help, I was able to visualize it and learn everything I needed to know."

She adds, "As a wildlife enthusiast, birder, and amateur astronomer, I relish the rural PNW life after too many years working in high tech and spending hours commuting each day. Ocean Shores has several wildlife habitats. One of the very best things about this little town is its prodigious deer population. They are tame and there are hundreds of them. One of mine--Donna--comes up onto my enclosed deck to stand outside the slider to my bedroom and stomp to get my attention. They feed my soul."

Karen noted that, "It may seem like I flit around in different media without taking the time to master one, but there's a reason....last year I had unsuccessful hand surgery that left me with limited mobility in my dominant hand, and severe hypocalcemia can render the hand immobile. Expecting that the situation will deteriorate over time, I've been exploring ways to be artful that require less work from my hand."

In addition to depicting the flora and fauna of our area, she also loves cats. In fact, she has another website, crazycatladyart.com, which is devoted to her cat-related art, including some whimsical pieces and videos. She also created and publishes an online magazine, "Mousebreath Magazine."

On August 12 and 13, her studio will be open and her variety of work on display as part of the 5th Annual Ocean Shores Art Splash Studio Tour.
