JUDGE: MARISSA LAUBSCHER

Marissa Laubscher has been a Public Art Project Manager with the Washington State Art Commission since 2015. She facilitates public art commissions for state agencies, public schools, and higher educational campuses across the state. Before moving to Washington, she lived in San Antonio, Texas, where she managed the City of San Antonio's storefront art program. She also organized public art projects and exhibits for San Antonio's City Hall, Public Library, and the International Airport. She studied Arts Management at the University of Oregon and Studio Art at the University of California in Santa Cruz. She is passionate about bringing art to the places where people live, work, and study. The thing she enjoys most about her job is the opportunity to engage directly with a large variety of communities and artists in all corners of Washington State.
